The food we eat is fundamental to our future health. It is the building block of new cells that are created in our bodies to replace old ones. The human body is in a constant phase of production and replacement of new tissues, so that for every dying cell (about 50 million /sec) one new one is produced. The most frequent renewal of skin cells (about 28 days), it takes longer to renew the internal organs (liver, pancreas, intestines, lungs, 3, 4 years). Therefore, what we eat will be the building material of our body and the determinant of our health for the next months and years.
